Good Character Photographs of Vaudeville Performers Will be Published in Halftone in the "Police Gazette" Free of Charge.

Dooley and Kent will be with Hyde's Comedians for next season.

Eugene Mack, the impersonator, is having a great time at Lagoon Island.

Now it's a case of "home again, old chap! Where did you leave your trunk?"

Jessie Dewuse is back to the old home again. The Stewart family has her; you know, 10 and Minnie M. Allen, who was once a bifurcated girl, is doing much better alone, thank you.

The Dunbar Sisters say they are in love with Atlantic City. The surf is so nice and damp.

September is the walking month—fly-by-nights take a chance the latter part of August.

Agnes Elsie Bernard is a real monologist now and she is also a life saver. They say she dragged

A SOUBRETTE IN THE SURF.

One of the Manhattan Beach Aggregation of Beauties Taking Her Tonic Bath.

20-cent vaudeville circus. The Hendersons, double traps, etc., have joined, too.

Ed Clark was held up by footpads and turned off for $85—exactly one half his week's salary.

Irving R. Walton is a comedian, and he is "filling in" eight weeks on the Gorman park circuit.

Reynolds and Walker have enough left to take a week off. Atlantic City gets their spare change.

Lillian Engstrom, still lonely without her sister, is rehearsing with Woodhull's Blue Bloods Company.

George Elmore and Lillian Davis, after a hard summer, will be with the Royal players next season.

Marion and Pearl are all in. Their show didn't last long enough to give them a sprint for their money.

The Prosper troupe of acrobats will put a little backbone into Ray's "Hot Old Time" Company this fall.

Hattie Verdier has signed with the Blue Bloods for the next campaign. Where's the other Verdier?

BOXING IS EASY

"Boxing and How to Train" is an authentic and reliable book on the subject. It is fully illustrated. Price only 25 cents.

a man out of the surf at Atlantic City. She ought to get romantic and marry him now.

Harry Ward's Minstrels closed a successful summer season. Hope he has the money in the bank.

The Fredericks Brothers and Jessie Burns have coralled the Pennsylvania parks for seven weeks.

The Manhattan Vaudeville Company has blown out the gas and a few good teams would like dates.

Fiske and McDonough are still hammering away at "Brooklyn's Temptation." He may be good some day.

Cooper and Reynolds have a new act, called the "Spotless Men of Spotless Town." Too long—call it Sapollo.

Ernest Hogan has bought a house for $20,000. See what there is in being an unbleached American.

Russell and Buckley, negro comedians, are back from the South. The President will be glad to know that.

Mr. and Mrs. McQuigg are home for the summer; one is at Roseville, Ill., and the other is at Pana, Ill. Why?

Look at the Bon Ton chorus for the season. The names are not very fancy, but the girls are beauties, so Ed Rush says. Fannie Flynn, Emma Lippman, Mary Marshall, Ada Peddie, Jennie Morgan, Emma West, Ethel Leroy, Mignon Phillips, May Beban, Jeanette Woods, Bobbie Roberts, Stella Mack, Bertha Lewis, Louise Humiston and Alice Walling.

Elsie Le Noir is going into the fold of A. H. Woodhull's High Rollers next season, and she is very, very happy.

Young's Jolly Path Finders have been hustling for the coin in the State of Ohio. Plenty of dust, but it's not negotiable.

Louise von Sherzer, the operatic soprano, is going to take a chance with the Dainty Patee Burlesquers this year.

Clarice Vance is said to have discovered a rich vein of iron ore on her elegant Long Island farm. One big long smoke.

Gladys Arnold has left Woodlawn, N. Y., for St. James, L. I. There's nothing like a quick change, even in vacation time.

Derringer and Atkinson are still with the Lucky Bill Show. Bill is certainly lucky; he's been out over the limit long ago.

Mae Taylor will be the soubrette of the New Gotham Theatre Stock Company at Brooklyn this fall—and she's so happy.

Hi Henry and his bandmaster, C. F. Converse, are taking in the Pan-American. They spend most of their time on the Midway.

Barr and Evans, who really don't look it, are rehearsing for the Bohemian Burlesquers. She has such a cute little voice, too.

George Yeoman played the Ferris Wheel at Chicago, but he don't say how much he lost. That wheel game is bad business.

Kelly and Woods have got Keough and Ballard for next season. I don't know whether it is a sister team or a knockabout sketch.

Kelly and Davis will be the principal comedians with the Broadway Burlesquers. In the spring Kelly will go to Europe with his wife.

Grace Vaughn has gone to Mt. Clemens for a rest. You see she has just recovered a $610 judgment, and that will hold her for a while.

Chas. W. Burch is at his home at Ann Arbor, Mich., for the first time in five years. He took a friend along to introduce him to his folks.

Price and Sadol, after a brief season of vaudeville, have parted. She will sing in an extravaganza company, and he—why, he will act.

Dave Seymour, after his Adirondack vacation, will return to New York. No, he will ride, as he obtained his transportation in the spring.

Elmo A. Stran, who has been on the road two years, has returned to New York. He had to ask a policeman where Fourteenth street was.

While in Asheville, N. C., recently, Loney Haskell received a permit to visit the Vanderbilt estate. Now he thinks he's a millionaire.

The Stetson Sisters, after their annual nap in Philadelphia, have gone with the Ideal Entertainers. Don't go too far from home; hot walking.

Harry O. Lea Velle is managing Riverside Park, South Haven, Mich., and doing his sketch for two salaries. I guess he'll buy real estate if he leaves the ponies alone.

J. H. Hearde, who has just returned from Dawson City, will remain at his home at Tacoma, Wash., for six weeks, until he gets the gold dust sorted out and weighed.

Ed. H. Clark and Florence Brockway have a brand new singing and dancing act which has set some of the old timers to thinking. They have played North Beach, Gloucester and Atlantic City with success.

A "Rabbit's Foot" Comedy Company will open its season at the Spanish Casino, October 7, with Col. Charles H. Duprez, of Lowell, Mass., as manager, and J. V. McStee, advance agent. Lucky name; ought to get the money.

The Bruns and Nina Vaudeville Company is shaping up, and among those engaged are: E. Maude Weingardner, Florence Cudney, Edwin O. Browne, Louis J. Epstein, Henry E. Edwards, Robert W. Percy. The company opens October 7 and closes May 31.

The Frank Davidson Company opened their season at Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, August 17, with the following people: Alice Lee, Maud Norwood, Jessie Richmond, Howard Hopper, J. R. Mackey, Billy Howard, Charles L. Lane, Carl Cook and Emmett Littleton.

"Myself and partner, Ben Saxe, after being more or less favorably known to theistic fraternity and the sporting world as boxers, made our debut as comedians and athletes in Austin & Stone's Museum, Boston, and met with success."

This is from Jack Irwin, but I don't know him.

The very latest is the Combination Theatre at Deadwood, S. Dak. The actors and actresses at present on the salary list are: Carroll and Nealey, the De Clairvilles, Lottie Thorn, Kennison Sisters, Kittie Dixon, Jack Turnbull, Edith Howard, Mlle. Saldo, Harry Golding, the Four Duffys, Bonnie and Fae and Jim Black.

P. S.—No shooting allowed during the show.

The Alton and Graham Palace Shows pay salaries to the following people: Otto Windle and D. C. Perry, agents; F. C. Gaylord, B. S. Eldred, P. F. McElroy, F. Brooks, R. P. Fenney, John J. Homes, M. Hand, F. A. Dixon, Dan Farrell, Jim Blakemore, Will Hall, F. Butler, Mons. Tetell, Strohm Sisters, Stafford Sisters, Bertha Smith, Dora Thualkel, Bess Burch, Ida Mehle, Pearl Strouse, Ethel Strohm, Joe Martin, Gerlie Robbins, Bell Family, Davenport and Ellis, Hall Brothers.

COMPELLED TO WADE.

A Farmer and His Wife Attacked and Badly Beaten by Whitecaps.

A prominent farmer and his wife, both of Monroe county, Indiana, who live not far from the city of Bloomington, Ind., came under the tan of the Whitecaps recently, and at 2 o'clock the other morning the man was aroused by the crashing of his front door which fell splintered to the floor. Ere he comprehended the situation several masked men pushed their way into the room, and, overpowering the man and his wife, dragged the couple to an orchard about 100 yards distant, where they were bound to an apple tree and given an unmerciful beating.

Afterward, in their nude condition and bleeding from their wounds, they were forced at the muzzle of several revolvers to march to the banks of Salt Creek and compelled to wade to the opposite shore, which is in Brown county.

The stream is a muddy and treacherous one, from four to fifteen feet deep, and the spectacle of the old couple plunging and falling in the water was enough to appeal to the stoutest heart. With the parting injunction to the old man and wife never to return the Whitecaps disappeared.

After lying in an exhausted condition on the creek bank for more than two hours the lacerated victims managed to wend their way home, where a doctor was summoned and attended their injuries.

During the whipping the leader's mask dropped off and he was recognized by the farmer, who was warned under penalty of death never to file a complaint or disclose his identity. The couple, who are over fifty years of age, are in a precarious condition.

New Warwick Hotel Bar at South Norwalk, Conn.

WM. C. JESSE, OWNER.

A Favorite Drinking Place for Sporting and Commercial Men.

(No. 177—With Photo.)

The bar of the New Warwick Hotel, at 21 North Main street, South Norwalk, Conn., is a particularly attractive place and is at the present time receiving the patronage of many of the most prominent citizens of the town as well as the transient guests of the hotel.

William C. Jesse, the owner, is a well-known and practical hotel man, who has made an unqualified success of the New Warwick. He has spared no pains nor expense in making the bar one of the finest in the city. He is a charming host and during his business life of over twenty years he has made many staunch friends, not only among his townspeople but in the outside commercial world.

His house is a favorite stopping place for traveling business men, representatives of sports and members of the theatrical profession, all of whom hold him in the highest esteem.

RODE MAN FASHION.

But This Missouri Belle Got the Worst of the Experiment.

One of the handsomest young women of Carthage, Mo., sustained serious injuries at Belleville the other day as the result of an attempt to ride a horse "man fashion."

She obtained the horse and saddle of a man friend and was assisted to mount. She rode a short distance sitting sideways on the saddle and slid off. Then she climbed on and rode astride. It was after dark.

The horse started off briskly. She was unaccustomed to the motion and became frightened. She dropped the reins and clung to the pommel of the saddle. Her feet lost the stirrups. They swung against the horse and frightened it and it ran away. She clung to the saddle desperately for several blocks, but finally lost her hold and fell off. She was unconscious for several hours.

WHIPPED AND ELOPED.

A Thrashing Which Merely Hurried up a Runaway.

One of the sensations of the day in the town of Hartford, Ind., was a horsewhipping administered on the public streets, in which one woman lashed another unmercifully. The woman with the whip was married and accused the other of flirting with her husband. She seems to have had some cause for her accusations, for she found her husband and the young woman walking on the street together. As soon as she saw them she jumped from her carriage, grasping the whip as she did so, and proceeded to lay on the lash in the most approved fashion. The girl begged for mercy, and a woman implored the wife to desist. She quit only when she was exhausted. There was another young lady present, but she ran down the street screaming and escaped punishment.

The husband stood by and coolly watched the proceedings. He then took the girl home, and the next morning it was reported that the two eloped, leaving the wife heartbroken.

AN ANGRY WOMAN

KILLS THE MAN WHO HAD

SEEN HER BATHING

A Tremendous Sensation Near Franklin, Ind., Which Ends in the Death of a Prominent Business Man.

SHE KILLED HIM AT THE FIRST SHOT.

Then, as She Stood Over His Prostrate Figure, She Fired Another Bullet Into the Lifeless Body, After Which She Gave Herself Up.

It seems the time has not yet arrived when woman will not be able to revenge herself for either real or fancied wrongs. A charming young woman of the Middle West has just distinguished herself at Franklin, Ind., by shooting a man whom, it seems, had not treated her with the deference and respect due her sex. He was busily engaged in overseeing some work when she walked slowly up to him. A few words were exchanged and then she suddenly drew a revolver and fired point blank at him. He took a step toward her, then fell with a bullet in his heart.

Standing over his prostrate form she shot again, the second bullet piercing his neck. This time the revolver was held so close that the powder burned the skin. Either wound would have caused death, but life was probably extinct before the second shot was fired.

After making sure that her aim had been true and her revenge accomplished she replaced the revolver, turned to her husband, who had accompanied her to the place, and the two went to their home, where they were later arrested by the sheriff and taken to Shelbyville.

The husband formerly worked for the dead man, who was a leading contractor and stonemason of the city. He was engaged on a stone contract at Red Mills, near Boggsstown, a few miles distant.

For some days past the woman has been visiting relatives near Boggsstown, and one of her recreations was fishing. The other morning she was indulging in her usual pastime. The sultry weather and the luring coolness of the limpid water combined to suggest the pleasure of a bath, and the suggestion was at once acted upon.

She is pretty, both of face and figure, and to the contractor, who came by on his way to oversee the work at Red Mills, she was especially attractive as she splashed about under the shade of a big sycamore. Unaware of his proximity, she prolonged her bath some time, then stepping gracefully upon the bank, sought to don her clothing.

At this juncture the man, it is said, made his presence known, and sought to make love to the fair bather. His approaches were resented, and she tried to reach her clothing, which she eventually did.

Hastily dressing and swearing revenge, the woman returned to her friend's house, secured a rig and drove daughter of the family, and that at times, when he knew the daughter was absent, would go to the house and, being told she was not at home, would try to make love to the mother. Afterward he is reported to have married another girl, and hearing of this the woman said she would be revenged of the wrongs and insults to herself and her daughter.

Coroner Ray, after viewing the remains, took the body to Shelbyville. The husband and wife were also taken there and placed in jail.

THE FIRST TIME IN TIGHTS.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

If any deluded individual thinks the life of the burlesque manager is a happy one he is very much mistaken.

"Talking about the chorus," said an old timer the other day, "I would give anything to have the job of selecting new girls off my hands. Every woman who comes to me thinks she is a Venus. We have got to keep building up all the time else we would never bother with green girls. The crucial moment comes when we put them in tights. I have seen them almost faint away the first time they wore them. But anybody can have my job, for I don't want it. I've run across some awful shapes, too, but I find that the majority of applicants are too fat—there's too much of them and no symmetry. They think if they have the weight they're all right and there's where they're all wrong."

JOHN FAGERSTEDT.

[WITH PHOTO.]

This young giant of the Boulder, Col., police force is 23 years of age, stands 6 feet 5 inches in his stocking feet and tips the beam at 225 pounds. "Boulder, the Beautiful," is proud of her efficient officer, whose pleasant smile, commanding appearance and manly manner can never fail to win friends and demand respect.

A THOROUGHbred GROUP.

The fine group of dogs pictured in this issue is the property of Samuel R. Wilbert, one of the best-known hunters and sporting men in the State of New York. He has a handsome estate at Lake Hill, Ulster County, N. Y., where his kennels are located and where he entertains his many friends during the shooting season. The mother of the pups is Nell Gwynne, and the father Flying Cloud, who has taken many prizes, and who is considered one of the best foxhounds in the State.

Many sportsmen who have visited the Catskill mountains, will no doubt remember both of these well-trained dogs.

SHE WASN'T AFRAID.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

They call her "the daring girl" at the Pier, because she is the best swimmer and surf bather who ever wore a bathing suit at that fashionable resort, and when she hits the briny she has them all guessing, and the bathing masters are uneasy until she turns back to the beach.

But the boys have discovered her weak points. There are two things she is mortally afraid of, one is a camera, the other is mashers. She doesn't object to the rough antics of old Neptune, but she does object to the ogling of a lot of men who seem to be willing to stand for hours on the beach just to see her dart by and to try and get a smile from her. She has been snapped so many times by the camera fiends that she is on the verge of nervous prostration, and now she's trying to invent a beach cart so she can be wheeled down to the surf without being seen.

FALLS IN LOVE WITH

OLD EIGHTY

His Children Objected Violently to the Match.

AND SO THEY ELOPED.

Story of the Prima Donna Who Wore a Carrel While Bathing.

That was a great elopement at Jackson, Ky., when a good-looking young woman of sixteen years became infatuated with a widower of eighty, who was the fond father of twelve grown-up children. The widower is rich and has more money and land than he knows what to do with, while the girl's fortune is in her pretty face and trim figure. Those who have seen her say she is very handsome.

The children of the old man objected to the match, and they went so far as to keep him under lock and key for the past week or more. The old gentleman was determined, so was the young woman. The other night she got a ladder and went to the house where the venerable lover lived, and, with the assistance of her two brothers, and while the inmates slept, succeeded in landing the old gentleman on terra firma from a two-story window.

Two fleet horses were hitched near by, and on the steeds they sped away to the county seat of an adjoining county and were married. The family did not discover the old man's absence until the dawn of day, and the ladder left under the window told the story of his departure.

Prima Donna Wore a Barrel.

The bad boys of Boston, Mass., have been having more than their share of fun recently with some of the girls who are members of a prominent theatrical stock company. Not very long ago the entire company went to Winthrop Beach to bathe and have a good time in general, the racket to wind up with an old-fashioned shore dinner.

Before the players could get to the section of the beach reserved for them the boys carefully planted several hundred live crabs they bought for the occasion, and some of the fair swimmers came pretty near having toes amputated by the lively sea crawlers. There was more shrieking and weeping than there was swimming, to the great delight of the "Johnnies," who lined the beach to see the fun.

The prettiest and nattiest bathing suit was worn by the prima donna of the company. That is, it was the prettiest before she got it wet. It was a new white suit, bought for the occasion for a $20 bill.

None of the male onlookers could judge of the beauty or fit of the costume after it got wet. One of the girls nearest the prima donna after her first plunge in the water saw something which made her shriek loud enough to drown a score of factory whistles.

Then she called all the girls within sound of her voice and made them form a circle around the prima donna. Then she went for a barrel with both ends knocked out, slipped it over the prima donna's head and in that manner got her up the beach to the bathhouse and away from the vulgar gaze of the boys.

When the girl was asked for particulars about the prima donna's mishap she said:

"Poor, dear Edith! She was frightfully cheated at the store in which she bought the bathing suit. When it got wet it was just like so much mosquito netting. You could see right through it. My, it was awful!"

The story was printed, and the prima donna's embarrassment was not relieved any at the performance that evening when the principal comedian of the company made several decidedly pointed allusions to the mishap. The prima donna had several good cries about it during the evening and threatened to leave the company. Then the management awoke and posted a notice forbidding any more talk or gags referring to the bathing suit on pain of heavy fine for the first offense and dismissal for the second.

Some of the Boston students have been so unruly at the stage entrance when the chorus girls emerge for their hotels and lobster emporiums that a force of police are stationed in the alley back of the theatre every evening between 10:30 and 11:30.

At the house she found her husband and told him what had happened. Together they sought the man. Reaching the mills she asked the owner of his whereabouts. Being told, she got out of the buggy and went to where he was working, followed by her husband. The result of their meeting has been told.

It is alleged that the dead man had been for some time a great admirer of the woman, and that he has on different occasions sought to force his affections on her. Her husband's position with him made him bolder than he otherwise would have been.

CENTURY OF PUGILISM

SHOWS AMERICA AS AN IMPORTANT FACTOR

IN CHAMPIONSHIP AFFAIRS

How the Title Descended From Jim Figg to the Present Time,
With Jim Jeffries its Proud Possessor.

RICHARD K. FOX BACKED MANY AN ASPIRANT.

Incidentally the "Police Gazette" Had a Big Hand in Giving International Pugilism the Success it Enjoys To-day.

If one has any doubts about the supremacy of the United States in pugilism let him look back over the records of a century and see what has been accomplished by our native-born fighters since they became potential factors in the fistic world. Certainly this country has fulfilled all the requirements of national greatness in pugilism during the first century of its existence as a nation. Its general love for the art of self defense and its go-aheadness in everything pertaining to the sport places it to-day on the top rung of the world's pugilistic ladder. That, however, may not be considered a credit to a nation, but the fact that the United States forged ahead of England, which ruled the pugilistic world before the new nation was born, is something to boast of.

Prize fighting, or, to use a milder term, the art of self defense, was first introduced in England about 1694 by a Mr. Figg, a native of Oxfordshire, and, being the father of the sport, he was naturally the first champion and retained the title until he retired in 1719. Tom Cribb became champion in 1809. In the following year Molineux, "the Black," a native of New York, arrived in England and fought Cribb twice for the title, meeting defeat on both occasions. Molineux is, therefore, entitled to the honor of being the first American prize fighter. In 1816 a line of packet ships was started between Liverpool and New York, which naturally brought British and American sailors together in impromptu fights.

The first ring fight in America at which some attempt was made at uniform rules was in 1816, and was between Jacob Hyer and Tom Beasley. Both men were large and powerful, but as neither was familiar with the science of the game the fight resolved into a rough-and-tumble affair. Hyer broke both arms, and the fight was declared a draw, mutual friends interfering. Although the fight originated in a common quarrel, it was much talked about among men of a pugilistic turn of mind, and in 1821 it brought about a meeting between Jim Lanford, American, and Ned Hammond, of England. The fight took place near Belleville, N. J., and was stopped by the constabulary.

In 1824 Lanford defeated Bill Hatfield in 37 rounds, and it was the first fight in which any attention was paid to the number of rounds fought. William Fuller and George Kensett, Englishmen, arrived in this country shortly after the Sanford-Hatfield fight, and in 1826 Kensett and Ned Hammond were matched to fight for $500 a side. The date set for the fight was December 7, and Coney Island selected for the battle ground. A sheriff and a number of constables drove the fighters and the crowd off the island and they journeyed to the Union race course at Long Island, where the battle took place and ended in a general row. The fight lasted seven rounds and was the first prize fight reported in full by rounds, and also the first wherein the best man was robbed of a decision.

In 1828 William Fuller beat Bill Madden and the following year Kensett lost to Hammond on a foul by going down without being struck. Three years later Jim Sanford, nicknamed the "American Phenomenon," was defeated by Andy McLane in 54 rounds. McLane was a Philadelphian, and his townsmen dubbed him champion of the State.

Bill Harrington, a Washington butcher, was considered champion of New York, so to decide the question of superiority of the two States Harrington and McLane came together near Baltimore, Md., which ended in a free-for-all fight. In 1834 McLane was defeated by Jim Reed near Elizabethtown, N. J., but as Reed did not class with McLane it was claimed the latter sold the fight, which gives us the first really crooked battle in American prize ring history. From 1835 until 1841, when "Yankee" Sullivan arrived in this country, there were quite a number of fights, the majority of which, however, ended in rows, the feeling between the Irish and English being bitter.

"Yankee" Sullivan's arrival in 1841 caused quite a commotion in pugilism, and on September 2 of that year he easily defeated Vincent Hammond for $100 a side. A week later Tom Hyer defeated John McChesney, better known as "Country McCluskey," in 101 rounds, time 2 hours and 55 minutes. Sullivan defeated Tom Secor and Professor Bell in 1842, but the most important fight of the year was between Chris Kelly and Tom McCoy. They battled 120 rounds, and McCoy died before he could be removed from the ring, the first death in American pugilism. Things pugilistic quieted down a bit after that, and fights were few and far between. In January, 1847, however, "Yankee" Sullivan easily beat Robert Count. In August, 1848, Tom Hyer and "Yankee" Sullivan were matched to fight for $5,000 a side. The battle took place on February 7, 1849, at Rock Point, about 40 miles from Baltimore. Hyer, who won in 16 rounds, weighed 185 pounds and stood 6 feet 2½ inches. Sullivan's height was 5 feet 10½ inches and he weighed 155 pounds.

Hyer's victory gave America her first simon pure champion. The gold fever was at its height in California at this time, and Hyer, George Thompson and Ned Morrissey went to San Francisco. Hyer retired and came back east, and George Thompson and a big man named Willis fought for the championship and

$2,500 a side. Thompson won, was challenged by Morrissey, and lost on a foul on August 31, 1852. Morrissey followed Hyer back to New York and challenged Tom, but the latter said he could not afford to fight for less than $10,000 a side, so nothing came of it. Morrissey and Sullivan were then matched for $1,000 a side. The fight took place at Boston Four Corners on October 12, 1853, and was won by Morrissey. Sullivan had Morrissey beaten, but foolishly engaged in a free fight outside of the ring and did not hear the call of time. Barney Aaron, Tom Davis, Jimmy Trainor, Jim

Coburn challenged any man in America for $1,000 or $2,000 a side.

On May 16, 1865, Jim Dunn defeated Bill Davis for $2,000 a side in forty-three rounds. On June 4 Jimmy Elliott was released from imprisonment and issued a challenge to fight any man in the United States for $10,000 a side. On Nov. 21, Bill Davis and Jimmy Elliott were prevented by the authorities from fighting for the heavyweight championship and $2,000 a side.

On Sept. 19, 1866, Mike McCool defeated Bill Davis in thirty-four rounds for $1,000 a side and the heavyweight championship belt, which had been presented to Mike.

May 27, 1868, Joe Coburn and Mike McCool were to have fought for the heavyweight championship and $5,000 a side at Cold Spring Station, Ind. Coburn was arrested 200 yards from the ring and McCool claimed the stakes. It ended in a fiasco.

On October 29 Ned O'Baldwin and Joe Wormald met for the championship of the world and $2,000 at Lynnfield, Mass. The police interfered and arrested the principals during the progress of the first round. Both men were released on bonds, and Referee Dan Noble appointed another time and place to fight. O'Baldwin appeared and received the stakes. On December 23 Abe Hicken beat Pete McGuire by breaking his jaw in the fifth round.

Pugilistic matters were lively in the West during 1869, and were made more interesting by the arrival from England of Jem Mace and his cousin, Pooley. The ball opened on January 12 with a fight for $1,000 a side between Tom Allen and Bill Davis at Chateau Island, which Allen won in 43 rounds. On February 22 Allen was defeated by Charley Gallagher on Carroll Island in the second round. On June 15 Allen was robbed of his fight with Mike McCool. Allen made a chopping block of Mike. The men fought nine rounds at Foster's Island, near St. Louis.

On May 10 Jem Mace defeated Tom Allen for the championship in ten rounds. The battle took place near New Orleans and was for $2,500 a side.

May 11, 1871, Joe Coburn and Jem Mace met at Port Dover, Canada, for the championship and $2,000, but battle took place at Mississippi City on Feb. 7, 1862, and Sullivan won in nine rounds.

Charley Mitchell arrived in New York in the spring of 1863, and on May 14 met Sullivan at Madison Square Garden. Authorities stopped the contest in the third round.

On March 10, 1868, Sullivan and Mitchell fought thirty-nine rounds to a draw at Chantilly, France, and on July 8, 1869, Sullivan defeated Jake Kilrain for the heavyweight championship of America and the "Police Gazette" diamond belt at Richburg, Miss., in seventy-five rounds, the last big battle under London prize ring rules. Regular organized boxing clubs were formed in different parts of the country about this time, with California in the lead, and the Marquis of Queensberry rules were adopted.

On Feb. 18, 1869, Jim Corbett became known throughout the country by defeating Jake Kilrain in six rounds at the Southern Athletic Club, New Orleans. On May 21, 1869, Corbett and Peter Jackson fought sixty-one rounds to a draw in San Francisco.

On September 7, 1892, he defeated John L. Sullivan for the championship at New Orleans in 21 rounds. On June 23, 1894, he defeated Charley Mitchell at Jacksonville, Fla., in three rounds. On March 17, 1897, he was defeated by Bob Fitzsimmons in 14 rounds at Carson City, Nev.

In 1890 Bob Fitzsimmons arrived in America from Australia. He defeated Dempsey, and on March 2, 1891, beat Peter Maher. He defeated Maher again in Mexico, opposite Langtry, Tex., on February 21, 1896, in one round, beat Corbett and lost the title to Jeffries at Coney Island on June 9, 1899.

Jim Jeffries, the present champion, after defeating Fitzsimmons, retained the title by beating Tom Sharkey in 25 rounds at Coney Island on November 3, 1899, and on May 11, 1900, defeated Jim Corbett in 23 rounds.

PUGILISTIC NOTES.

"Kid" Parker and Perry Queenan are talked of as the principals in a twenty-round contest at Omaha next month.

Jack O'Brien, of Philadelphia, defeated Jack Scales, of England, in six rounds for a purse of £100 at Newcastle, England.

Rufe Turner, of Stockton, Cal., is out with a challenge to Tim Hegerty, Willie Cole, Young Corbett or any of the crack lightweights on the Coast.

George Dixon is training at Petersburg, near Denver, for his go with Young Corbett. The latter is working at Sand Creek with Bob Armstrong.

Jim Hall's friends at Buffalo are talking of giving him a benefit. Hall wants to return to his old home at Sydney, Australia. Hall's health is still very poor.

Oscar Gardner has changed his mind about retiring from the ring. He has agreed to meet Gus Bezenah, of Cincinnati, next month. The match may be pulled off in private.

Tom Sharkey says he is ready to fight Peter Maher if a club is in sight which will guarantee a purse. He will not neglect his business for training unless he sees a suitable guarantee.

A Denver sport, who is a bit struck with Young Corbett, offers to back him against McGovern for $5,000. That sporting man has evidently not seen McGovern perform in the ring.

"Australian" Billy Murphy positively refuses to remain in the pugilistic graveyard, and has issued a challenge to fight "Sig" Hart, who gave him an artistic trimming about a year ago.

Danny Haley, the Omaha boxer defeated by Mike Schreck at South Omaha recently, has decided to quit the ring. Haley's fight with Schreck was his first and last appearance as a professional.

St. Louis boxing fans are sanguine that they will have some sport as soon as the weather gets cooler. Colonel Haughton will revive his West End Club, and other promoters will try to get in line.

"Kid" Broad is in Buffalo. He now lays the blame of his defeat by Young Corbett to the following causes: Too weak, too careless, not used to the climate and altogether too bad to beat Corbett.

Charley White has been selected to referee the twenty-round bout between George McFadden and "Rube" Ferns, of Kansas City, which is to be decided at the Fort Erie A. C., of Canada, Aug. 27.

Walter Burgo, of Boston, who had been training for a twenty-round go with Harry Berger at Trenton, N. J., the other night decamped, leaving a two weeks' board bill and some soiled socks behind.

"If Gus Bezenah is looking for a match he needn't wait until Pedlar Palmer reaches this country," says Harry Harris. "I am ready to fight Bezenah at any place or time if he can furnish $1,000 backing."

Terry McGovern, when asked what he thought of his coming match with Jack Roberts, said: "I hope this fellow will make a good showing, because every time I defeat anyone they say I have easy marks."

The proposed match between Terry McGovern and Jack Roberts, the English featherweight champion, will in all probability be the opening attraction of the new Royal Golf and Athletic Club in Connecticut.

Young Mowatt, of Chicago, is hot after a meeting with Benny Yanger. He has deposited a forfeit. He wants to arrange a twenty-five-round battle or a finish fight to be contested at 126 pounds at the ring-side.

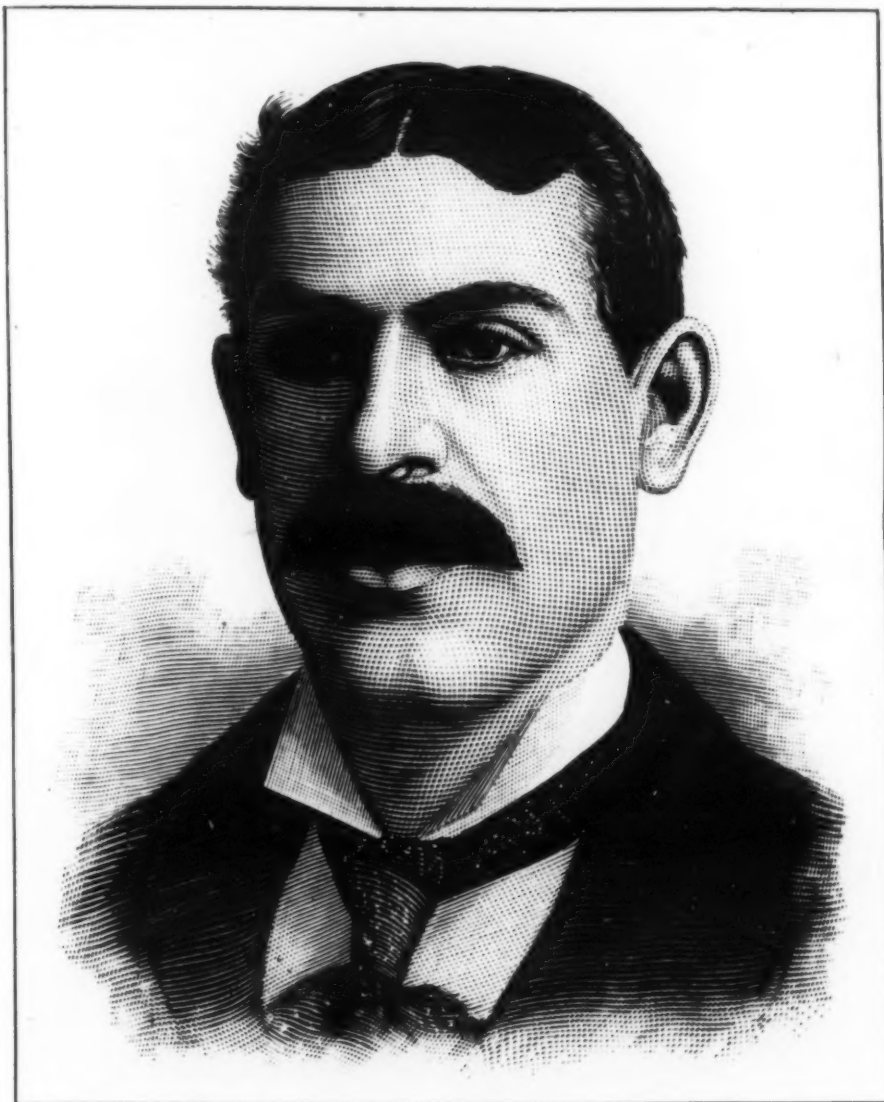

It is rumored that the boxing game will soon be revived at Memphis, Tenn. If the report is correct Paddy Carroll will probably be selected as matchmaker of the Southern Club, a position which he filled a few months ago.

"Kid" Lavigne's first battle in the roped arena under the management of Billy Roche will probably take place at Cincinnati, where he will be pitted against Barney Furey, the Cincinnati welterweight, in a twenty-round bout.

Jack Root, who claims the middleweight championship of the West, is getting Tommy Ryan's habit of agreeing to meet only those men he is sure he can beat. Root refused to fight Marvin Hart at Louisville after agreeing to do so.

and Con Parker and a number of other English "pugs" arrived in America. Morrissey bantered Hyer into a match in June, 1854, and they arranged to have it out on October 20. Bill Pooley took up the gauntlet in behalf of Hyer, and beat Morrissey in a rough-and-tumble fight at the foot of Amos street, North River, at 6 a. m. on July 26. Morrissey and Hyer met on October 20, as agreed, with a few friends, and, as Hyer produced pistols for two, the affair fell through. The years 1854-'55-'56 and '57 were busy ones for the fighters. Contests between good, bad and indifferent "pugs" for stakes of from $25 to $1,000 a side took place in all parts of this country and Canada. On May 30, 1856, "Yankee" Sullivan was found dead in his cell in San Francisco, where he had been confined by the California vigilance committee.

In 1859 Heenan challenged all America without receiving a reply. On April 17, 1860, he fought his international battle with Tom Sayers at Farnborough, which ended in a row. On July 14, Heenan returned to America and was the lion of the day. On March 22, 1862, Heenan and his brother James sailed for England, where, the following year, Heenan was defeated by Tom King. On May 5, 1863, Joe Coburn defeated Mike McCool for the heavyweight championship and $1,000 a side in sixty-seven rounds; time, 1 hour and 10 minutes. On May 11 Jimmy Elliott, who was killed by Jere Dunn, lost to Jim Dunn on a foul. On May 18 Joe the high sheriff stopped it before they had completed the first round. On November 30 Joe Coburn and Jem Mace fought twelve rounds to a draw for the championship and $2,500 a side at Bay St. Louis, Miss. On August 15 Ned O'Baldwin and Jem Mace met at Collier's Station, W. Va., to fight for the world's championship, but could not agree on a referee.

On March 4, 1873, Harry Hicken and Bryan Campbell fought twenty-four rounds at Collier's Station, W. Va. Roughs and Campbell's backers broke into the ring when Hicken was winning and ended the fight.

Pugilism was in disgrace after the Campbell-Hicken fight and championship contests were few and far between. Ben Hogan, the "evangelist," met defeat at the hands of Tom Allen, and in '77 Allen lost the heavyweight championship on a foul or, rather he was robbed of the title as he had Goss beaten, but could not beat the mob. In 1878 Johnny Dwyer defeated Jimmy Elliott, and on June 21, 1880, Paddy Ryan, the "Police Gazette" champion, defeated Joe Goss for title of heavyweight champion of America.

In 1878 and '79 John L. Sullivan became known as a pugilist of some calibre by besting such good ones as "Cockey" Woods, Dan Dwyer, Tommy Chandler, Mike Donovan and Patey Hogan. On April 6, 1880, he virtually knocked out Joe Goss in two rounds, and two months later knocked out George Rooke in two rounds. On May 26 he defeated John Flood under London prize ring rules with kid gloves, on a barge anchored off Yonkers, N. Y., in eight rounds. After knocking out Captain Jim Dalton and Jack Burns in Chicago he matched with Paddy Ryan for the heavyweight championship, Richard K. Fox backing the latter. The

PUGILISTIC EXPONENTS

New Fighting Club at Fort Erie Makes the Outlook Promising for the Patrons of Sport in New York State.

JEFFRIES WILL NOT MEET SHARKEY IN 'FRISCO.

Young Peter Jackson Wants to Fight "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien Again. Cheering News From the Quaker City.

Brief, indeed, was the news from Victoria, B. C., announcing the death of Peter Jackson. It was as follows:

"Peter Jackson, the famous negro pugilist, died July 23 at a private sanitarium at Roma, near Sydney, N. S. W., of consumption."

—and that was all that could be cabled over concerning one of the greatest exponents of the fist art that the world ever saw. He was unquestionably the greatest of all heavyweight negro pugilists. He was born in the West Indies forty years ago, but went to Australia when a boy. He began his prize-ring career in 1882 in Australia, and within a short time had won over such men as Jack Hayes, Mick Dooley and Sam Britton. So conspicuous was his success he decided to come to this country, where purses were more valuable. He reached San Francisco in 1888 and immediately attracted attention from persons interested in affairs of the ring. He began a series of victories which seldom has been equaled.

These victories were mostly in the West, and Jackson determined to try to widen his field. He came East, stopping in Chicago and Buffalo to vanquish opponents. Reaching New York he fought "Ginger" McCormick in Hoboken, knocking out his man in two rounds.

In 1889 he went to England, where he became a lion of the sporting world by defeating all comers, winning nine fights, the longest of which lasted four rounds. He returned to this country, won several contests, and then went to Australia, where he fought a draw with Joe Goddard.

A year later he again landed in San Francisco, and a match was arranged between him and Jim Corbett. The battle was fought in the California Athletic Club in 1891, and was one of the most famous contests in the history of the ring. After sixty-one rounds of fighting, at the end of which both men were so weak they could hardly stand, the affair was declared "no contest."

Since that memorable battle Jackson has been generally regarded as a "back number." He lived in England several years, and, later, gave sparring exhibitions in the Western States. He gradually failed in health and his death was not unexpected.

In his prime Jackson was magnificent in physique. He was nearly 6 feet 2 inches in height and when he fought generally weighed nearly 200 pounds. He had remarkably broad shoulders. His skin was very dark. Jackson earned much money in his day, but died poor.

Matters are progressing so nicely with the new fighting club at Fort Erie that it looks as if the project would be a decided success. The arena is to be erected on the Canadian side of the Niagara river, opposite Buffalo, N. Y., and will be the only place of prominence of its kind in the East. Work on the proposed building is progressing. Men are at work leveling off the ground, and it is expected that the abutment will be commenced in a day or so. It was announced that the building would be ready for the interior workmen by the 28th of the present month, and by the 10th or 15th of September it is hoped all will be in readiness for the first bout. Only half of the $8,000 for which the club has been capitalized, has so far been subscribed, but the promoters are said to be daily securing subscriptions for the stock, which is being sold at $10 per share. It is not anticipated that much difficulty will be experienced in disposing of all of the stock.

The Fort Erie Club scheme originated with Jack Herman when the Lewis measure superseded the Horton law and legislated the boxing game in New York out of existence. Herman has been identified with the fighters for many years and before locating in Buffalo was in New York city, where he was successful in promoting several boxing clubs, notably the Union Park Athletic Club, which was the scene of many first-class fights during the early days of the Horton law. He has been at the head of several similar institutions in various parts of the country with good, bad and indifferent success, but it looks as if he had the real thing now at Fort Erie. He has a large following not alone in Buffalo but in all the big cities in the Western part of New York State, and as he is a good matchmaker as well as a good club manager, the new enterprise ought to be a success.

San Francisco did not take very kindly to the proposition to have Tom Sharkey and Jim Jeffries fight there, and it is perhaps just as well, for Sharkey never did anything on the Coast to merit the admiration of any but a select coterie of sharks and sure thing men, who had in the Irish fighter a willing tool to facilitate the success of their schemes, one of which was his victory over Bob Fitzsimmons, in what was the biggest pugilistic steal on record. The whole story about Sharkey being matched with Jeff was premature and unauthorized. Joe Egan, who is acting as secretary for Jeffries, writes me that there was nothing in the story, as Jeffries had not signed with any club and would in all probability not make any match until late in the fall. There is every reason to believe that Alex Greggains, matchmaker of the San Francisco Athletic Club, made Sharkey an offer in the expectation of inducing Jeffries to meet the ex-sallor. The latter agreed quickly enough, but the Jeffries end was not so easy to capture and the thing fell through. Jeff is disposed to favor a match with Ruhlman, although he talks also of giving Fitzsimmons another chance. If there is anything in the statement which the latter is alleged to have made to his friend Milton Roblee that he would fight one more battle if the championship title were the prize at issue. At any rate Jeff is determined not to fight anybody until late in the fall, and every effort to induce him to alter his intention seems useless.

tion which "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien enjoys by reason of his having defeated George Crisp for the heavyweight championship of England. Jackson certainly has sufficient excuse for his actions in sending a challenge to O'Brien. He whipped the latter in San Francisco, so Mr. Bagerly, the well-known fistic critic on the Coast, says, but was not given credit for it by some sports, who thought the latter faked. O'Brien was outpointing Jackson two to one when he went out just before the finish. It was claimed by Jack's friends that he got careless and Peter sneaked in a "stinger." Anyway, both men have done splendid work since, and the talent would like to see a second meeting to settle the question of superiority beyond all dispute.

Here is cheering news for the boxers from Philadelphia. The tip has been passed around that the game will shortly be revived in the good old Quaker city, the home of more than one-third of the best boxers of America. The Police Directors have consented to raise the barrier against sparring matches, provided the better class of club managers will get together and formulate plans whereby the fly-by-night element will be barred from holding exhibitions. The police say that it is not the regularly organized boxing clubs that have put the sport in disfavor, but the class of sports who go in the business just to give one show, then pocket the gate receipts and take their departure, half of the time failing to pay hall rent and leaving a bunch of hard-up scrappers howling for their money.

While reports have frequently gained circulation tending to cheer the lover of boxing since Director English put a stop to the game several months ago, none of the clubs have been allowed to open and the managers have lost much money in consequence.

Now, however, the clubmen are especially active. It is said that boxing bouts will be held about the latter part of September. The report has it that there will be a limit to the number of clubs and only responsible organizations allowed to hold exhibitions.

It will probably be a long while before Australia sends us any more fighting men of quality. Tom Mitchell, the Australian colored welterweight, who arrived in California last month, became discouraged about getting a match, and left for his native land on the steamer which went out a week ago, says the San Francisco Bulletin. He was offered a match at Stockton, but as the purse was only $100 he considered it not worth his time to train for. "I can earn more money in my country than fighting for $100 purses," said he, "and I am going home. If a fighter is any account at all he can get a $1,000 purse, which is not bad. In the past few years boxing has picked up a lot. Where we once were getting only $50 purses, $500 and $1,000 are now offered. The times are better, and, of course, this has made the purses larger. I think some of your American fighters could do better over there than they are doing here. They would get fair treatment, and would stand just as good chance of winning the long end of the purses as they do here."

They say articles of agreement calling for a fight between Terry McGovern and Jack Roberts, of England, have been signed, but I am loath to believe that matters have progressed that far in view of the uncertainty which exists regarding a place to pull off an event of such magnitude. Just who is responsible for Roberts' prospective appearance in America cannot be learned with any accuracy, either. Sam Fitzpatrick says he is the man and claims to have been

BY TOM JENKINS IN

STRAIGHT FALLS

Irishman No Match for the Wrestling Champion.

TOM DIDN'T TRY HARD.

Beaten Man Was Up Against It and Always on the Defensive.

It was probably nothing but a desire to add to his finances which prompted Peter Maher to engage in a wrestling match with Tom Jenkins, of Cleveland, at Philadelphia, on August 8. Jenkins is conceded to be the best wrestler in this country, and Maher had no possible chance to beat him except in the event of an accident, but he met him and they wrestled and the Irishman was downed in two straight falls.

The match was a two out of three falls contest, the first bout at catch-as-catch-can style, the second at Græco-Roman and the third, in case each man gained a fall, was to have been under collar and elbow rules. The contest took place at Inlet Park and about 2,000 people were on hand when the men entered the ring.

In the first bout Jenkins went right at his man and Maher went on the defensive. The Irishman proved to be able to hold his opponent off well and broke several bad holds which Jenkins secured.

Jenkins, however, forced Maher to the mat shortly after the bout began and with a leg hold raised his man and almost succeeded in forcing his shoulders to the floor. Maher managed to squirm out of trouble, and then took his turn at offensive work.

His attack didn't seem to bother Jenkins much, and as soon as the latter had rested he started in to wind things up.

Securing a crotch and hammer hold he had Maher as helpless as a child and forced his shoulders to the floor. The time of the bout was sixteen and a half minutes.

In the Græco-Roman bout Maher lasted seventeen minutes and twenty-five seconds, when an elbow grip put him out of misery.

The bout was interesting, but Jenkins seemed to be under a pull and the spectators were satisfied that he could have thrown Maher in much quicker time.

As Jenkins scored two straight falls the collar and elbow bout, which Maher expected to win easily, was not contested.

FISTIC ITEMS.

Jack Hamilton, the Troy boxer, has caught the fever about going to England after matches.

An Australian sporting man is trying to coax Joe Bernstein to go to the Antipodes with him. He has been assured of a match. Joe is thinking the matter over.

Mike Schreck, the hard-hitting welterweight of Reading, is back from Omaha, where he added two victories to his credit by defeating Charley Burns and Danny Haley.

Young Corbett and Artie Simms have been matched to box in Denver the latter part of this month. There is talk of matching George Dixon against Corbett after this match.

"Kid" Lavigne says that he is not averse to arranging a meeting with Dave Sullivan. Lavigne is prepared to face the little Irish fighter in a mill limited to ten or twenty rounds.

Tommy Hogan is talking of making another trip to England. As his name was coupled with recent divorce proceedings in that country he is liable to find it uncomfortable over there.

Hugh McWinters, the colored lightweight, wants to get a crack at Young Peter Jackson. McWinters says Jackson is a tough proposition, but he thinks he can take him into camp.

Young Corbett, of Denver, has received an offer to meet Tim Hegarty, of Australia. Corbett has notified Hegarty's manager that he will face the Antipodean after his go with Artie Sims.

The Southern Athletic Club's attraction at Lexington, Ky., on the opening night of the triennial convale was a 25-round contest between Marvin Hart, Louisville's sensational champion, and "Wild Bill" Hanrahan, of New York.

Jack McClelland, the featherweight champion of Pittsburg, and Eddie Gardner have signed articles to fight twenty rounds before the club offering the largest purse. Either the Southern A. C., of Louisville, or the Savannah A. C. will get the battle.

A number of Sacramento capitalists have applied to the Secretary of State for the purpose of incorporating the California Athletic Association. It is the intention of the club to hold championship glove contests at the Velodrome near the city.

Billy Smith now says he was not in condition when Young Peter Jackson took his hide off. Strange that he was not ignorant of the fact when he jumped the rope, inasmuch as he trained for the contest on a large-sized jag and a package of punk cigars.

One of the best fights ever seen in Windber, Pa., was pulled off on Aug. 5. It was between "Kid" Davis, of Denver, and Jimmy Dunn, of New Castle, and went the limit of fifteen rounds. Both men fought hard from start to finish. Honors were slightly in favor of Dunn.

B. A., Trenton, N. J.—1. In poker it matters not what a player classes his hand. The hands speak for themselves when shown. 2. In draw poker four of a kind is a stronger hand than a flush, which beats three of a kind. When straights are not barred a straight flush is the highest hand that can be held.

N. R., Hartford, Conn.—Jack McAuliffe and Billy Carter, the "Streator Cyclone," fought for the first time at North Judson, Ind., on Feb. 13, 1889. Skin gloves were used. After fighting 64 rounds a draw was the result. Their second meeting occurred at New Orleans September 2, 1892. McAuliffe won in 15 rounds.

H. E. F., Butte, Mont.—Your "Sporting Annual" has a record of Corbett fighting Jackson sixty-one rounds to a draw. I bet the same, but the other parties want to take the money; they say the referee says no decision, and do you call that contest a draw?.....No decision was rendered, which was practically a draw.

F. E., Albany, N. Y.—Bill Blake, "Dublin Tricks" of the West, and Tom Jennings fought for $200 at Blue Island, St. Louis, on October 20, 1887. Jennings was 6 feet 3 inches in height and weighed 195 pounds. He was big and muscular enough to fight any man in the world. Blake stood 5 feet 11 inches in height and weighed 185 pounds. Nine rounds were fought and both pugilists received terrible punishment. Blake, who was beaten, then caught Jennings by the legs and threw him. A cry of foul was raised, but the referee ordered the fight to proceed. Blake, who was nearly exhausted, refused to fight, and Jennings was declared the winner.

A. S., Butte, Mont.—K and R agree to shoot a match of 25 live pigeons for $25 a side; K bets R $20 to $10 that he (K) wins the match; R bets K $10 to $20 that he (K) doesn't win the match; the match is a tie, each man kills 20 birds; doesn't K have to kill more birds than R to win the bet?.....Yes; K loses the bet if he stipulated that he would win.

E. L., Frankfort, Ky.—It was at the prize fight between Patsy Marley and Con Orem that the military appeared and fired on the spectators. Marley and Orem agreed to fight for $50. Seventy-six rounds had at 8:12 o'clock, and the rain came down in torrents. The men were taken beyond the line of the breakers in dories and at the signal, plunged into the ocean. The course was from the Oriental Pavilion, at Holland's Station, to a point off Sea Gate, and return. Several hundred people followed the hardy swimmers along the beach and the boardwalk afforded an excellent view of the racers over the entire course.

Reilly gained the lead early in the race and was never headed. The first half was made in twenty-five minutes, and then came a battle against wind and tide on the home stretch. Reilly finished strong, about 200 yards ahead of Brown. The race was for $100 a side and a large amount of money changed hands on the result.

"TUT" RYAN WON.

"Tut" Ryan, who fought Gus Ruhlin at New Orleans in 1897, met Bill Doherty for the Australian middleweight championship at Sydney, N. S. W., and Ryan won in three rounds.

JOHN HAS WON MANY FIGHTS.

I would like to put in your valuable paper a challenge for Bob Yohn, of Atchison, Kan., to fight anybody at 125 pounds, give or take a few pounds, before any club that will give a date. Yohn has won nineteen fights out of twenty and will fight on most any terms. HARRY KELLY, Atchison, Kan.

FROM FLORA TEMPLE TO CRESCUS.

How the Trotting Records Have Been Reduced and the Horses who Made Them.

The incomparable records made by George H. Ketcham's famous trotting horse Cresceus, have aroused keen interest in sporting circles and it is not improbable in the minds of many good judges that before the season ends the mile trotting record will be reduced to 2 minutes flat. For some time they have been confident of an early reduction to that mark, and the record-breaking performance of Cresceus at Cleveland has caused them to become even more hopeful of a 2-minute record.

Cresceus did the mile in 2:02½ and this shows that just 17 seconds have been knocked off the record since Flora Temple's time, the bike sulky, of course, having a great bearing on performances during the past nine been fought in 2 hours and 5 minutes, and the referee declared the fight a draw. Before the ring had been cleared a regiment of General Schoepf's forces, which had been sent from Fort Delaware, arrived and seized the boats and passengers and carried them to the fort.

J. A. K., New York.—Let me know if Roeber ever wrestled with Tom Jenkins and if Roeber lost all the falls, as I wish to settle an argument with a clubmate of mine, who claims Tom Jenkins threw, or rather gained two falls, catch-as-catch-can, and that Roeber gained a fall, Græco-Roman?.....Jenkins gained two falls, catch-as-catch-can, and won the match.

W. H. A., —In answer to my question "how best to harden the knuckles of the hands," you replied in your August 10 number to "pickle in salt brine." Will you kindly let me know how I shall do that as I do not understand how to go about it.....Take a strong brine of salt and water and soak your hands in it for an hour at a time. Brine in which beef or fish has been salted is the best. Ask any butcher how to prepare it.

ZANG WANTS TO FIGHT.

Eddie Zang, the 105-pound Pittsburg champion is anxious to fight any 105 or 106-pound man in the country, the battle either to take place in Pittsburg or before any club offering a suitable purse, Danny Dougherty preferred.

PROF. REILLY SWIMS WELL.

Rockaway Beach, one of the watering places adjacent to New York city, was recently the scene of an interesting one-mile swimming race between Thomas Reilly, of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, who holds a "Police Gazette" championship medal, and Al Brown, life guard at the Oriental Pavilion. A heavy sea and strong current was running when the start was made.

The foregoing records, showing a reduction of 17 seconds, since 1859, were made to high-wheeled sulky and regulation tracks up to and including the performance of Maud S., 2:08½, in 1885, at Cleveland. Sunol then registered 2:08½ to high-wheeled sulky, but on a kite-shaped track. Later champion records were to bike-sulky, which came into vogue in 1892 and was adopted everywhere, making trotters several seconds faster.

Tim Goulding, formerly head bartender at John L. Sullivan's Boston saloon, is now in charge of Bobby Brown's Clarendon Hotel bar, Surf Avenue, Coney Island. Tim is very popular with the sporting men of Greater New York. When at the Island stop in and try his new drink which he calls the "Sporting Dubscocktail."

THE BARTENDER'S CONTEST.

The POLICE GAZETTE has offered another handsome and valuable gold medal for competition by saloonmen, hotelkeepers and bartenders.

The contest will close on October 15, 1901.

The best original recipe for a mixed drink takes the handsome trophy.

The second prize will be a $10 gold piece.

The third prize will be a $5 gold piece.

All of the recipes sent in will be published in this column, with the originator's name and address.

Better subscribe now and keep track of the contest. 13 weeks for $1.00. This includes all the supplements.
